Dear friends, supporters and users of Hargrave Hall,

Welcome to our June Newsletter,

Announcing the Hargrave Hall LEARNING FAIR

In the spirit of the many community initiatives growing up around Archway, local resident Shireen Mohandes recently hit upon the idea of promoting the many independent teachers and coaches in and around Archway. Her idea was a simple one when you think about it - an event designed to enable the teachers to meet and chat with potential clients – a Learning Fair. She describes it as being potentially a bit like Tinder, but for learning instead of dating, with both teacher and learner given an opportunity for a commitment free meeting to decide whether they are suited.

The Fair also seemed like a great idea to Tracy Ulltveit-Moe, trustee of Hargrave Hall, who joined the “Learning Fair Team” on behalf of Hargrave Hall. And sure enough, once the team started inviting teachers they saw a great response - most of the exhibitor spaces have already been filled. People are really excited about taking part.

Even the Mayor’s office is being supportive and is taking a keen interest in how the fair goes. If successful they see it as something which could be promoted in other parts of London – but Archway and Hargrave Hall will have been the first.

Introducing our first exhibitor: Sally Kendall

I'm a qualified and experienced art teacher who works in the area. I enjoy teaching adult learners in a workshop environment, and have been doing so for 7 years. Exhibiting at the fair will provide me with the opportunity to meet people who have might be interested in taking mosaics as hobby. It is a great art form, because it is easy to get started, you don't need to be able to draw, some materials are inexpensive, and it is very creative & therapeutic.

As an independent teacher, opportunities for me to meet potential students are welcomed with open arms. Here are two examples of my two art pieces (above) , and two from my students.
